VIRGINIA Va. Code Ann. § 16.1-279.1	Prior to the expiration of the protective order, a petitioner may file a written motion requesting a hearing to extend the order. Proceedings to extend a protective order shall be given precedence on the docket of the court. VA Code Ann. § 16.1-279.1 (b)	As needed to protect the health and safety of the petitioner or persons who are family or household members of the petitioner at the time the request for an extension is made. VA Code Ann. § 16.1-279.1 (b)	If the petitioner was a member of the respondent's family or household at the time the initial protective order was issued, the court may extend the protective order for a period not longer than two years to protect the health and safety of the petitioner or persons who are family or household members of the petitioner at the time the request for an extension is made. The extension of the protective order shall expire at 11:59 p.m. on the last day specified or at 11:59 p.m. on the last day of the two-year period if no date is specified. Nothing herein shall limit the number of extensions that may be requested or issued. VA Code Ann. § 16.1-279.1 (b)

		members when the order expires. West's RCWA 26.50.060 Superior court did not abuse its discretion in granting the former wife's petition to renew and make permanent the protection order, because the former wife made a showing of past violence and present fear, when the former wife stated that the former husband was physically abusive during the marriage and had been since the divorce, and the former wife desperately feared bodily harm, if not death, would come to her without the protection order; requiring a new act of domestic violence to support an extension would make an extension superfluous because a new act would plainly support a new order. 		before extending an injunction under subd. 2. The petitioner shall notify the respondent after the court extends an injunction under subd. 2. Wyo: If the initial injunction was for less than 4 years, but expired, and the petitioner states that an extension is necessary to protect him or her, sub. (4) (c) 2. requires the court to extend the injunction for up to 4 years from the date the injunction was first granted. Because the court is required to extend an injunction under the proper circumstances, even after it has expired, it follows that a court has the authority and jurisdiction to grant the extension request after the injunction has expired.
